Sunday was again, as usual, our sailing day, and we got under way with a stiff breeze, which reminded us that the latter part of the autumn, and time to expect southeasters once more. We beat up against a strong head wind, under reefed topsails, as far as San Juan where we came to anchor nearly three miles from the shore, with slip-ropes on our cables, in the old southeaster style of last winter. On the passage up, we had an old sea-captain on board, who had married and settled in California, and had not been on salt water for more than fifteen years.

“Oh, curse these confounded patrols!” cried Hazel. “Come on, all of you, get down the field into that wood! Yes, you, too, Speedwell, unless you want to have your ears chewed off in Efrafa. Come on, move!”

They tottered over the pasture to the woodland beyond and lay completely exhausted on flat, bare ground under fir trees, Hazel and Fiver consulted Kehaar again.

“It’s no good expecting them to go any farther Kehaar,” said Hazel. “They’ve been going all night, you know. We’ll have to sleep here today. Did you actually see a patrol?”

Poem:

The first half of the poem is due April 21 with the second being due April 28:

Hear The Voice

HEAR the voice of the Bard,
Who present, past, and future, sees;
Whose ears have heard
The Holy Word
That walk'd among the ancient trees;

Calling the lapsed soul,
And weeping in the evening dew;
That might control
The starry pole,
And fallen, fallen light renew!

'O Earth, O Earth, return!
Arise from out the dewy grass!
Night is worn,
And the morn
Rises from the slumbrous mass.

'Turn away no more;
Why wilt thou turn away?

The starry floor,
The watery shore,
Is given thee till the break of day.'

The following Poem will be due in 2 parts. First Half – Due May 5, Second half
May 12

How sweet I roam'd from field to field

BY WILLIAM BLAKE

How sweet I roam'd from field to field,
    And tasted all the summer's pride,
'Till I the prince of love beheld,
    Who in the sunny beams did glide!

He shew'd me lilies for my hair,
    And blushing roses for my brow;
He led me through his gardens fair,
    Where all his golden pleasures grow.

With sweet May dews my wings were wet,
    And Phoebus fir'd my vocal rage;
He caught me in his silken net,
    And shut me in his golden cage.

He loves to sit and hear me sing,
    Then, laughing, sports and plays with me;
Then stretches out my golden wing,
    And mocks my loss of liberty
